Comments to the Author

This paper focuses on a comprehensive survey of fault recovery techniques for standing and walking bipedal robots. The review topic was considered useful and interesting. Nevertheless, some revisions are suggested to be given:

- In the introduction part kindly avoid including references instead the author explains why this study is important for the scientific world and what exactly is being covered in this paper.

Comments to the Author

The introduction is very weak and should include the research question and the aim of the paper.
Improve the quality of literature along with the latest literature.

What about last updating in this topic and new references from 2018-2024? The survey of existing literature is not sufficient.

The explanation of the related work needs to be updated and improved in general.

Figures (Fig. 4 to 11) are not clear. Clear diagrams and Reports are required for readers to have
