Abstract

Iranian Policy towards Caucus area has emerged from Political , economic and Security considerations and Iran was able to build new relations with each states of that area especially Armenia which enlarged its relation and cooperation with Iran in which this relation reached the stage of Partnership , That was the opposite of Iran – Azerbaijan relations , These relations was all the time Full of tension and unstable due to cases and problems between them especially the issue of dividing Caspian sea wealth and the Azeri minority in Iran , In spite of this ,Iran tried to be opened towards Azerbaijan and improving relations with it .

Iran's relations with the states of Caucus area came under the influence of regional and international competition and the struggle of imposing influence especially Russia and u.s.a as well as Controlling the largest economic investment projects in the region
