Evaluators Guide

The main task of a scientific evaluator, of the researches for the publishing, is to read the paper which is in his/her scientific field very carefully and evaluated according to a vision and an academic perspective which is not subject to any personal opinions. Then, deciding his/her notable and sincere remarks about the addressee paper.

Before starting the assessment process, the evaluator should make sure it is fully prepared to evaluate the addressee search and whether the research is located within his/her scientific specialization or not? Does the evaluator has enough time to complete the evaluation process? Otherwise, the evaluator can apologize and propose another evaluator.

After the evaluator's approval on conducting the evaluation process and he makes sure that (s)he is able to complete evaluation during the specified period, the evaluation process must be done according to the following parameters:

- Evaluation process must not exceed ten days so that it does not affect negatively on the researcher.
- Non-disclosure about the search information for whatever reason during and after completion of the evaluation process unless after taking a linear authorization from the researcher, or the editor-in-chief of the journal, or when the research was published.
- Do not use the search information for any personal benefit, or for the purpose of causing harm for the researcher, or his /her sponsoring institutions.
- Disclosure any potential conflict of interest.
- Considering the principal of not affecting by nationality or religion or gender of the researcher, or any another personal considerations.
- Is the research authentic and important so much so that it must be published in the journal?
- Does the research agree with the general policy of the journal and its publishing controls therein?
- Does the idea of the research find in previous studies? If yes, please indicate those studies.
- Does the title of the research agree with its content ?
- Does the abstract of the research describe clearly its content and idea?
- Does the introduction of the research describe what the researcher wants to access and clarify it accurately? and whether the researcher explained it the problem which (s)he studied
- Does the researcher scientifically and convincingly discussed the results that (s)he found during his research.
- The evaluation process must be conducted secretly and without any informing of the researcher about any aspect of it.
- Editor-in-chief must be informed first, If the evaluator wants to discuss the research with another evaluator.
- It should not be there any direct communications and discussions between the evaluator and the researcher with regard to the research under evaluation process. The evaluator's notes about the research must be sent through the editor-in-chief of the journal.
- If the evaluator found that the research is taken from previous studies, the evaluator must state those studies to the editor-in-chief of the journal.
- The scientific notes and recommendations of the evaluator will be mainly depended on them in the decision to accept the search for publication or not. The evaluator is also requested to clearly state paragraphs which need a simple adjustment as possible to be carried out by the editorial board and to those paragraphs that need a substantive amendment which must be done by the researcher himself/herself.
